Chapter 1 by Auminix

"My name's Kara." She said.
I looked at her intently.

Chapter 2 by Adi Gonzales

She has a shade of hair I'd wish for myself, light and soft like snow. I noticed she has a chunky locket shaped like a heart and I don't know how timidly I look until I realized that I haven't told her what my name is.

"I'm Trent." I stuttered as I awkwardly plastered a weak smile across my face, hoping I didn't look stupid.

"Nice to meet you," Kara replied. She didn't look at me like she was disgusted or mad at me for bumping into her with her shopping. I couldn't help but catch a look: there were shoe boxes, little perfume packets and a pair of gradient sunglasses. I caught her blushing, so I turned to her instead. She still didn't seem to judge me by my clumsiness and I started to wonder if there was a chance that I could find someone like her that I deserved.

Chapter 3 by Auminix

Of course, there were plenty of See more of Story Wars One of a Kind.

I walked home and smiled. When I got to my apartment, I got the phone book and looked up her name: Kara. Kara! Kara! Aha, I found it!

Kara Eidenbrig. 360-788-7886.

I called the number.

"Hello, who is this?" She said as her sweet, calming voice rang through the phone. I sighed as I thought what to say. What would I say to a girl I just met that I liked?
